Many people in Canada still believe he is the otorious Wm. Townsend, whose black and cold blooded crimes made his name a terror throughout Canada West and all along the Lakeshore. He tried to lec-ture in Vienna near Port Burwell a few weeks ago, and barely escaped being mob-bed by the excited citizens. Her Majesty's subjects across the Line regard him with a suspicious eye. Children in the street pause from their play when Mc-Henry passes and whisper, "There goes Bill Townsend, the murderer!" and females of advanced years franticly clutch their smelling bottles for fear of swooning when they hear he is in town. SERENADE. "Rwestest eyes were ever seen,"
Fiery, loving but seeme:
Eyes like plausts, planets though
Shedding light and lovelit glow
Over the dark yet solar star,
Whence they never run afar,

Sweetest lips two lips could kiss, Tender, fragrant, splitting biles On the lips that dare to sip Long's wine from them, lip to lip; Lips carcesing and carcesed, Four are satisfied and blest.

Smoothest check, for check to touch Peaceby, glowing, young, and such Parls might have evid me: Halen's check could never be a Fresher on the heights of Troy, She a woman, he a boy.

Pairest head was ever made, Brise for light and hair for shade; Sharpiy, delicate and small. Knewing little, feeling all: All its thoughts are mine and love's, Loveful as a turtle dove's.

Prettiest throat that ever suug, Fredica throat has over sung; Singing always love is young; Veiny, flexible, and round, Living well of gladsoms sound, Running over with delight, For the car can liston right.

Softest hosen ever pressed To a lover's happy firest: Breathing dewy, silled place, Let me nestie there my face: Milky, fragrant, bilestal hose, Nover from this nest fill roam, Daintlest form leve ever folded, (Let me sing it and be wolded,) Soft and warm from top to toe.— Do not shut thy sweet eyes so; Sweetest eyes were ever seen, Fiery, loving, and serone! THE HUMBLE CHRISTIAN.

The humble Christian from the world recedes,
And proves his piety by silent deeds;
He values not the meed of noisy fame,
And little cares if fools appliand or biame;
Rebuking vice, the sinner wounds him sore,
And hypecrites when consured wound him more;
With modest light he shoots his beams afar,
Yet chines scarce noticed, like a midnight star;
He gives his substance to the poor, and sheds
The dewa of merry over dying beds;
And dies blusself, in Fidith's calm warfare brave,
With scarce a tear to wet his unknown grave.
